Old Palestine is the best town on the map. Peaceful Palestine. Pretty Palestine.

"The open door" is an international question, and has no reference to the Jasper that permits in leaving the north door open when he comes in to loaf on your time.

The Herald was prosperous enough this week to enable it to buy a real turkey, therefore this good Saturday evening it stands on tip-toes and beams its good will to all mankind. It is also ready now to render a final decision that chicken never was as good as turkey for Thanksgiving and never will be—unless our turkey gets away.

The Herald sincerely regrets that any of the employees of the railroad, who received their pay for last month in small checks, found it necessary to discount them. It is not right that they should have to. When a man renders his services at a hundred cents on the dollar he is entitled to his pay at that rate. The Herald has been urged to skin alive the men who discounted these checks, but it is not the province of the Herald to say what men shall do with their money. But it does regret that such methods had to be resorted to.

The farmers of Anderson county are trying very hard to do the right thing in the present trying times. It has been virtually agreed that where cotton must be sold to take care of an obligation that the sacrifice will be made, but all cotton will be held that possibly can be held without working injury to any one. One great sentiment was expressed by the farmers in the meeting of last Thursday, and that was the decision to make more of a living at home and in the future depend less on cotton. That is the policy that is going to make our people independent. When our people really begin to live at home most of the possibility of trouble is gone.

State Commissioner of Agriculture Milner writes the Herald that he and other state experts expect to visit Palestine on December the 4th, and will organize a Farmers' Institute, and asks that the local people arrange a place for a meeting and give it the necessary publicity. This is a very important matter, and one that should receive prompt and marked attention at the hands of the Board of Trade and the farmers and business people generally. The object of this visit will be primarily to put Anderson county in close touch with the other farming sections of the state, and much good can come from such an institute. Let the commissioner be given a cordial reception here.

QUAKER REFLECTIONS.

Sound money must be the kind that talks.

Any man is apt to kick if you call him a mule.

Even in cold weather the politician is apt to get roasted.

Every man to his trade, but the poet should be versatile.

Social Club.

Mrs. T. W. Smith entertained the Social Club Thursday at dinner, in an informal home-like way, and an old-fashioned "good dinner," which seems to be gaining in popularity with the Social Club. The dinner hour was 1 p. m. and was so excellent, and the hostess so entertaining, that the whole afternoon was gone before one realized it had hardly begun. An interesting feature of the dinner was the unwinding of a ball of twine—each lady unwinding and passing to the next—each finding a subject for discussion, the subjects calling for consideration and much thought. One was, "If you had been an old maid, what would you do with your life?" Another was, "In your opinion what is the cause of these financial affairs?" This was discussed and rediscussed, and yet remained unfathomable. There were a great many subjects for consideration and discussion, and each proved herself a fine "discusser."

Mrs. E. H. J. Andrews and Mrs. P. H. Hughes were guests of the club.

Novelty Club.

Mrs. A. R. Johnson entertained the Novelty Club at her pretty home on Crawford street Thursday afternoon. The parlors were luxuriant in the king of winter flowers—chrysanthemums—of every hue, and those magnificent ferns of Mrs. Johnson's attracted every eye. Five tables were arranged for "42," which was interesting. Mrs. Johnson is an ideal hostess, and outdid herself on this occasion. After the playing, covers were laid and an elegant two-course luncheon was served.

The following were guests of the club: Mesdames E. J. Ezell, H. R. Link, Frank Markle, C. Hightower, Harry McMahon, P. W. Brown, John Stillman, Nat Dobbs, James Caldwell.

Woman's Guild.

On Thursday afternoon Mrs. I. S. Dallam entertained jointly the Woman's Guild and the Junior Woman's Guild of the Episcopal church. At 2 o'clock the business session was held. Mrs. Dallam, the president, presiding. At 3:30 the Junior Guild joined them, also the beloved rector, Rev. E. H. J. Andrews, and a most delightful social hour passed. Mrs. R. E. Lee gave a most interesting reading from the October Century Magazine, "Telegrams to Oppen." The ladies brought their sewing and it was nice to listen to the reading, while work was carried on. Mrs. Dallam served hot chocolate and different kinds of cake. It was a cheery, delightful afternoon of pleasure to each and all.

B. Y. P. U. Entertainment.

Mrs. O. C. Cutter entertained the Senior B. Y. P. U. at her pretty home on Pine street last evening. Mrs. T. W. Smith assisted her, and with the young ladies of the home, who made everything so home-like, the entertainment was an eminent success. The seniors have these monthly socials, where all meet and enjoy a pleasant evening together 'neath the shelter of some sweet home. There are so many sterling young men and women who are members of this organization, and they are doing a work that Palestine, in future years, will "rise up and call blessed." On this pleasant occasion, music and song were enjoyed, conversation was lively, and some old-fashioned fireside games played. Mrs. Cutter served hot chocolate and different kinds of cake—and that warm hospitality that has ever belonged to the Cutter home.

Confederate Reception.

From San Antonio Express, November 13th:

The studio of Pompeo Coppini was filled with visitors yesterday afternoon who called to view Mr. Coppini's masterpiece, the Reagan monument, and to greet the visiting Daughters of the Confederacy. The reception was under the auspices of Bernard E. Bee Chapter, whose members disposed a cordial hospitality to its guests.

The studio was unadorned and the "Lost Cause" stood out in its full glory in a simple setting of Confederate flags.

Receiving the guests were Mesdames A. W. Houston, J. D. Guinn, P. Coppini, M. D. Monserrate, R. H. Northrup, J. A. Shirley, John J. Stevens, E. O. Spencer, Benno Kayton, B. F. Reiley, Mary E. Howard, W. P. Baugh, Shardein, J. H. Kirkpatrick, William Maurer, Henderson, J. P. Lovelady, George Surkey, H. C. Peterson, J. W. Gillespie and others.

Presiding at a prettily decorated punch table were Misses Lilla Rookh Guinn, Grace Griffin, Nellie Lytle, May Largen, Bessie Long, Maude

Long, Sue Christian, Lula Phillips, Julia Gallagher.

Prominent among the honor guests was Mrs. Reagan, who wore a handsome reception gown of black marquisette.

Mrs. Mollie Reagan Mobley of Austin was gowned in black voile with black silk passamenterie trimmings.

Mrs. Charles J. Horn of Houston, chairman of Reagan Monument Committee, light blue Aeolian cloth, princess, with streamer sash of black liberty satin ribbon; blue velvet picture hat.

Miss Ozment of Palestine, president of Reagan Chapter, was gowned in green voile, with white picture hat trimmed in shaded green.

During the calling hours, Mrs. Margaret Olive Jordan's newest poem, "The Violin's Call," was recited by Mrs. Daisy Marquis Briggs. A violin obligato was played by Miss Emma Conring. Mrs. J. H. Kirkpatrick, chairman of the reception, recited an original poem, entitled "The Lost Cause."

Coffee and cake was served. An electrical musical instrument contributed a program of classic selections.

For Visiting Ladies.

From San Antonio Express, November 13th:

The quaint, attractive home of Mr. and Mrs. P. Coppini has been the scene of several pleasant gatherings and pretty hospitalities for the visiting ladies of the Confederacy. Monday, Mr. and Mrs. Coppini entertained with a beautiful Italian dinner in honor of Miss Ozment, president of Palestine Chapter of the Confederacy, and Mrs. Charles J. Horn of Houston, chairman of Reagan Monument Committee. Splashes of bright colored chrysanthemums and palms in artistic groupings, gave a decorative air to the pretty home. The menu, served in courses, was made up of all the tempting edibles known to the Italian epicure.

Work of Vandals.

Last night during the performance at the opera house some vandal or vandals cut to pieces a rope that was used in a windlass to handle scenery.

baggage, etc., from the second story of the building. The rope was literally cut to pieces, and it caused much difficulty in handling the properties of the show, in its hurry to get out of the city, having to leave shortly after midnight. It is just such acts as this that lead eventually to the penitentiary or to the gallows. Such lawless characters should not be permitted to live among civilized people.
